Citizen Participation Works

Forming a Neighborhood Association

Does Your Neighborhood Have an Association?

Should It?

Neighborhood Associations Help Citizens Get Involved

Activities of Neighborhood Associations

Corvallis associations participate in many things such as:

- Distributing neighborhood newsletters.
 - Forming neighborhood watch groups.
 - Keeping abreast on local land use and development issues.
 - Working on neighborhood improvement projects.
 - Providing ways for neighbors to become connected and get to know each other.

Getting Recognized by the City

- Submit request to the City's Planning Division.
- The Planning Division ensures all criteria are met and then formally recognizes the group as a neighborhood association.
- Every year, the City sends a letter to the association to confirm contact information and that the association is active.

Benefits of Effective Citizen Involvement

- Provides a forum for citizens to get questions answered and resolve issues.
 - Acknowledges citizens as experts on their neighborhood issues.
 - Helps decision makers make better decisions.
 - Helps citizens become effective partners with government.

Criteria for Setting Up a New Neighborhood Association

- Define the geographic boundaries of the association.
 - Allow all residents and property owners within the defined geographic boundary to participate.
 - Develop bylaws that include organization name, purpose, meeting schedule, and board of officers. Sample bylaws are on the City's web site.
 - Provide a written address and up to two contact people who will be responsible for disseminating information.
